

What is

Family Life Education?

keep scrolling to find out!

Once upon a time...

There was a village built upon the edge of a river where the water churned roughly over the rocks

There were signs at the river's edge warning of the danger, but people often ignored the signs & fell into the river.

They either drowned or flowed downstream to a waterfall & were never seen again.

The villagers came up with a plan

A net was put downstream to catch those who had fallen in the river.

A full-time crew was hired to watch for villagers floating downstream, pull them from the river, dry them off, & get them to ambulances.

A new hospital was built closer to the river's edge.

All these efforts increased the survival rate but many were still injured or drowned.

A couple who moved to the village watched what was happening & asked if something more could be done to save them. (Collaboration)

The villagers explained that they had developed a good system, & while they weren't able to save everyone, things had improved.

The couple decided to take matters into their own hands by...

- Helping to build a large fence along the rough part of the river (Prevention)
- Offering swimming lessons (Education)

- Speaking to villagers about the dangers of going into the river without a life jacket (Prevention & Education)

- Conducting classes to teach people how to maneuver their boats around the rocks (Prevention & Education)

Soon...

Fewer & fewer people were falling into the river and those who did fall in were better able to help themselves out.

Family Life Education

Is any organized effort to provide family members with information, skills, experiences, or resources intended to strengthen, improve or enrich their family experience.
